MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

The parties in the instant case have submitted an “Agreed Protective Order” for entry. undersigned will enter the Agreed Protective Order simultaneously with this ORDER but this Order STRIKES the first sentence of paragraph 5 of the Agreed Protective Order and SUBSTITUTES in its stead a paragraph which is set forth below.

The first sentence of paragraph 5 of the Agreed Protective Order submitted by the parties provides that if a party files a document which has been designated as confidential in the Court record, then that same party shall simultaneously move to file the confidential document under seal. (See ¶ 5 of proposed Agreed Protective Order, Doc. 9-1). This provision improperly puts the burden on the party who wants to file the document to request that it be filed under seal. The party who has designated the document as confidential should be the party moving to seal the document since that party is in the better position to explain to the Court why it should be filed under seal. This Court cannot place under seal any documents filed with the Court, even those designated as “confidential” by the parties, absent good cause to do so as the public has a paramount interest in access to all court documents. Proctor & Gamble Co. v. Bankers Trust 78 F. 3d 219, 227 (6th Cir. 1996); Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. FTC, 710 F.2d 1165, 1177-1181 (6th Cir. 1983). In addition, E.D.TN. LR 26.4 flatly prohibits filing any document under seal without prior showing of good cause to the satisfaction of the Court. Filing a motion under seal which simply states the parties have designated the document as confidential will not be sufficient to place the document or information under seal.

In Proctor & Gamble Co. v. Bankers Trust Co., 78 F.3d 219, 227 (6th Cir. 1996), the Sixth Circuit directed that no court papers may be placed under seal absent “good cause shown.” Id. at 227. The Court then referred to its earlier decision of Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. FTC, 710 F.2d 1165, 1177-1181 (6th Cir. 1983), cert. denied, 465 U.S. 1100 (1984), as the decision in which “the principles “ of sealing court papers for good cause shown is “so painstakingly discussed.” Id. at 227.

In Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. v. FTC, 710 F.2d 1165, 1177-1181 (6th Cir. cert. denied, 465 U.S. 1100 (1984), the Sixth Circuit began its discussion of when court papers could be placed under seal by recognizing the long standing tradition of public access to court proceedings in this country. The Court articulated three reasons for this right of public access. First, “public trials play an important role as outlets for community concern, hostility and emotions. When judicial decisions are known to be just and when the legal system is moving to vindicate societal wrongs, members of the community are less likely to act as self-appointed law enforcers or vigilantes.” Id. at 1178 (internal citations omitted). Second, “public access provides a check on the courts. Judges know that they will continue to be held responsible by the public their rulings. Without access to the proceedings, the public cannot analyze and critique the reasoning of the court....One of the ways we minimize judicial error and misconduct is through public scrutiny and discussion.” Id. Third, “open trials promote true and accurate fact finding.” Id. (external citation omitted.).

The right of access is not absolute, however. Id. at 1179. There are two categories of exceptions to the right of public access. The first category is the need to keep dignity and order in the courtroom. In such an instance, the legitimate societal interest in protecting the adjudicatory process from disruption outweighs the interest of unfettered public access to the proceedings. Id. The second category consists of restrictions based on the content of the information to be disclosed to the public. Id. Certain content based exceptions outweigh the right to public access. Some of these exceptions include:

- 1) a defendant's right to a fair trial,
- 2) trade secrets,
- 3) national security, and
- 4) certain privacy rights of participants and third parties.

Id.

In light of the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the first sentence of Paragraph 5 of the Agreed Protective Order, which is being entered simultaneously with this Order, be STRICKEN and SUBSTITUTED with the following paragraph:

If any party desires that materials containing confidential information be filed with the Court, that party shall give opposing counsel five (5) days notice. Thereafter, any party may file a motion requesting that the papers be filed under seal. In filing this motion, the moving party MUST comply with Rule 12.2 of the Electronic Case Filing Rules and Procedures. If the motion is granted, the clerk's office will retrieve the document and redocket it. If the motion is denied, the clerk's office will delete the document and modify the docket entry to note the document was deleted upon the denial of the motion to seal.

SO ORDERED.

ENTER.
